

Partnering And Outsourcing Programs

Our cost segregation specialists do not replace the essential role the CPA plays in tax planning and preparation, and are not considered a source of competition. Instead they provide a resource, which enables CPA's to draw new clients and strengthen bonds with existing ones. Usually the case with most firms is they lack the necessary tax expertise to correctly segregate the various types of properties or the engineering knowledge necessary to analyze construction blueprints and conduct engineering cost estimates. DC Consulting has expertise in both tax and engineering.

Partnership We will introduce ourselves to your client as a separate company. We will handle the collection of professional fees from the client and share the profits with you.

Outsourcing

We will be introduced as part of your company and you will be handling the collection of fees from the client and we will bill you for the service.
